Civilian Defense Meeting Here Friday Eve. January 5

Meeting Called to Plan Against Atom Bombing

The Lemon Grove Fire Commissioners have called a civilian defense meeting for 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, January 5, at the fire station on Central avenue.

The public is urged to attend this meeting as it is of the utmost importance that Lemon Grove get its civilian defense program set up.

The meeting will be open for discussion of the civilian defense needs of the community, and any person who has any thing to offer is welcome to do so.

It is to everyone's advantage to get into the defense program inasmuch as we are in a vulnerable spot.

Knowledge of Atomic warfare will be beneficial in the saving of many lives in the event of an atomic bombing of the San Diego area.

Lemon Grove will in all probability be called upon to furnish the men and vehicles to assist in the evacuation of the more dangerous areas, in that our community is on the fringe of the danger spot.

This is by far the most important meeting called in Lemon Grove in a long time, and every person has a stake in this, as aerial warfare is no respector of persons, and in the event of a bombing of the San Diego area we are all in the same boat.

Mark your calendar for Friday evening, January 5, and attend this vital meeting.

New Year's Party Benefit Mission

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Seeman, 3665 Citrus, are opening their home on New Year's Day to attendants of the Episcopal Mission and friends who wish to see the Rose Parade and or the Rose Bowl football game.

A buffet luncheon will be served at noon, proceeds from which will go to the Mission treasury.

Mrs. Seeman would appreciate reservations made by calling her at H 6-1026.

Dr. Craddock Buys Home Here

Dr. and Mrs. John E. Craddock, of Ocean Beach, purchased and have moved into the K. L. Dennstedt home at 2340 Lawton Drive. They have two children, Melody and John Jr.

Dr. Craddock is a dentist with new offices at First and Maple in San Diego.

The Craddocks have subscribed for the Review to help them get better acquainted with Lemon Grove.

Blood Needed for War Casualties

Until mid-January, the San Diego Chapter of the American Red Cross will have a mobil blood unit stationed at Naval Hospital at least one day a week to procure blood for the Armed Forces.

Mrs. Marguerite Rasberry, who heads the San Diego Red Cross blood procurement program, announces that by the middle of January the Red Cross chapter hopes to have a blood mobile unit of its own off the assembly line for use on a full schedule throughout the week. At that time the blood mobile will be sent into various communities throughout the county whenever any area expresses a desire to give blood for American wounded.

The mobile blood unit will also be stationed, between its various trips through the county, at Naval Hospital next to gate 2.

The blood program will rely on various Red Cross services for its success. The Red Cross motor service, for example, will be assigned the task of trucking each day's blood quota to Los Angeles for processing. Staff aides will have an active part in registering all blood donors. Volunteers in the canteen service will be on hand whenever a Red

by Mae Rex Graham

Today we stand on the threshhold of a new year. War clouds dim our vision of the future. Threats of enemy invasion fill us with trepidation.

What can we do about it? Where can we turn for solace to allay our fears?

Do we so quickly forget the celebration of Gods' gift—his only Son—born midst the singing of the angels "Peace on Earth, Good will to men."

The same God who looked down with compassion on a war torn world two thousand years ago, grieves today that hatred, greed and lust for power involves nations in a world-wide war.

The same God is ready to lead His people today that led His people down through the ages.

Next Sunday, the Churches are uniting in a Day of Prayer for universal peace.

Not only every Sunday, but every day should find people praying for the *wisdom and guidance of our leaders.

We have contended that if a stated hour of each day is fixed for prayer for peace by Christian people around the entire world, then a never-ceasing chain of prayers will be going up in a continuous plea for divine help.

America—a Christian nation—again should take the lead.

Monterey Heights PTA Program

Lt. Col. James Prenn will present the program.

Hostesses will be the Fourth Grade room mothers.

FRED NOAH PROMOTED

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noah have moved to Los Angeles where Mr. Noah has been made supervisor for the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. in the North L. A. area. Mrs. Noah was secretary for the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Vera Ludlow, 1670 Dupont, will take her daughter's place as secretary.

Robert Curry Sends His Thanks

Mrs. Robert H. Curry, 8261 Golden, has returned from San Francisco, where she visited her son Corporal Robert H. Curry Jr. who is a patient at Letterman Army Hospital. Mrs. Curry reports that Robert, who received chest wounds in the advance to the Manchurian border is recovering slowly, but satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. Curry talked to Robert Christmas Eve. He said that he had received so many lovely Christmas gifts, that he didn't know where to put them all. He wishes to thank all the people who so kindly and graciously sent him cards and gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Curry said, having Robert safe on United States soil and knowing he was recovering, was the best Christmas gift they ever received.

1-As May Enlist in National Guard

Men classified 1-A by their Selective Service Boards and eligible for induction into the Armed Forces, may enlist in the California National Guard provided they do so before receiving their notice to report for physical examination, Brig. Gen. George W. Fisher, Commanding San Diego's 114th AAA Brigade, announced today.

"Under the stepped-up mobilization program, the time between receipt of the 1-A classification and the notice to report for physical examination will be extremely short," Fisher said, "so young men interested in joining the National Guard and training here with other San Diego men should waste no time in enlisting in the National Guard," Fisher said.

Fisher pointed out the activation of two new battalions in the San Diego area will provide many openings for non-commissioned officers and officers. Good men can be promoted rapidly, Fisher said, stressing the Guard's need for officer material.

ROSS BUYS HOME HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Al Ross have purchased the home at 7371 Mt. Vernon and took possession recently. Al is an underwriter for the California Western States Life Insurance Co. and in a national contest put on by the company during October and November, he placed seventh.

These Words Make Newspaper Publishing a Pleasure

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Graham
Lemon Grove Review
Lemon Grove, California
Dear Mr. and Mrs. Graham:

As you know, the results of the recent school elections were very gratifying to us. I do not feel tthat too much emphasis can be placed upon the splendid publicity your paper gave during our efforts to inform the people of the school district concerning the importance of this very vital election. It is very gratifying to have a newspaper in our community that always takes a positive stand on issues that have to do with the welfare and education of children.

While we cannot advertise wider circulation of your paper to the parents of children in our school district, we can honestly state that it would be beneficial to the school if every parent in the school district was on your subscription list. This would mean that facts and information published in your paper would reach those people most vitally interested in the school.

Once again we wish to thank you for your continued interest in the school and school children, and for the fine publicity we receive each week in your paper.

Yours very truly,
Byron L. Netzley
District Superintendent

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Graham:

The Executive Board of the Lemon Grove Parent-Teachers Association wishes to thank you for the splendid support your paper gave to the recent school bond election.

Naturally, the Parent-Teacher organizations are always interested in the welfare of children and in the school, and it is very encouraging to know that we have, in this community, a paper which can always be counted upon to support them. The publicity your paper gives to the children's activities throughout the year is very much appreciated by all concerned. Thank you again.

We wish you continued success and a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Sincerely yours,

S. D. Chamber Files Highway Memorandum

The San Diego Chamber of Commerce presented the following letter to the Senate Interim Committee on Highways which is meeting in San Diego today (Thursday), containing the recommendations of the Chamber's Highway Committee, which is of vital interest to every citizen of San Diego County:

The critical deficiencies of the State Highway System in San Diego County are not being met by present allocations of funds to this area. We fully realize the purport of this statement which does not point a finger of guilt at State Highway officials, the Commission or members of the Legislature.

Members of the California State Highway Commission and its Administrative staff have given this county fair and equitable treatment.

This county through its Legislative representation and the State Legislature itself did not give a full measure of support to the bill sponsored by its own committee at the 1947 session and the resulting compromise bill which reduced the revenues proposed, has been found to be inadequate to give us the type of highway system which will keep pace with our fast expanding population, commerce and industry.

In San Diego County our problems are particularly severe in that our unincorporated areas have been growing at a more rapid rate percentage-wise than the urban areas. Within our incorporated city, we are not only faced with the problem of accommodating an ever increasing amount of traffic but with the new problem of providing off street parking space to accomodate the ever increasing flow of motor cars at the termini of freeways and parkways. To provide your committee with a complete list of critical shortages in this city and county, is beyond the province of this organization and it overlaps with presentations which will be made to you by the City Government, the County Government and the capable staff of the State Division of Highways. However, we feel that we would be remiss if we do not direct the attention of your inquisitorial body to some pressing problems which call for early correction, three of which require legislative action.

Projects Requiring Special Legislative Consideration.

W. R. Vandenberg of the Dutch Cleaners, 7870 Broadway, is recovering nicely from an operation for the removal of his left eye two weeks ago at Mercy Hospital.

While starting the engine on his motor boat while fishing last June, the rope became tangled in the gear striking him in the face, hitting the eye and causing deep abrasions above and below the eye.

Bill had suffered terrifically ever since while doctors were trying to save his eye.

License Plates on Sale Tuesday

Purchase of 1951 license plates should be done early in the registration period to avoid the rush, Beth Bennett, manager of the San Diego office, Department of Motor Vehicles, said today.

Motor vehicle license renewals start Tuesday and extend through February 5. The potential registration slips received by motorists will serve as the 1951 registration slips when the new license numbers are stamped on them and the proper fee paid.

Mrs. Bennett warned that persons to whom vehicle ownership was transferred after December 15 will not receive potential registration slips through the mail. In such cases the new owner should apply during the renewal period with the 1950 registration slip. Those persons receiving potential slips for cars they no longer own should destroy the slips, Mrs. Bennett said.

Motorists this year will receive shiny new plates for the first time since 1947. And the new black plates with orange letters must last five years.

IT'S A BOY

Charles Montgomery, of Montgomery's Fine Food Store on Broadway, was without a doubt the happies man in Lemon Grove on Christmas Day. Mrs. Montgomery presented him with his second child, their first son on that day. He weighed 7 pounds, 2 ounces, and has been named Mark Edward, Mark has a darling little sister, Toni Ann, waiting at home for him.

Program Meeting for County Clubs

A program meeting of San Diego County Federation of Women's Clubs will be held on Saturday, January 6 in the Olivewood clubhouse in National City starting at 10 a. m., with Mrs. John H. Crippen presiding.

Short talks will be given by club presidents—Mrs. Walter Stitt, Coronado; Mrs. Charles Stets, Vista; Mrs. Eda M. Martin, Oneira; Mrs. C. E. Vertress, Oceanside; and Mrs. Lillian N. Olivier, Palm City.

Mrs. S. J. Eaton, an authority on ceramics, will talk on this popular craft, which dates back to Bible days, and will also have on display, a large collection of her own work and craft workers in the various clubs throughout the county.

The afternoon session, 1:30 p. m., will have as speakers the Misses Eleaner Ihle and Virginia Macil, who won the federated clubs award in the Nurses Recruitment program.

Mrs. Ralph Wendell Hastings, music chairman, will present the Misses Valerie and Sharon Archbold, violinist and pianist in a group of instrumental selections.

Mr. Joe A. Bjernstad, Divisional Manager of Investors Syndicate will speak on "The Man Behind the Eight Ball".

Vince Ridge Named to Head 1951 Red Cross Campaign

Vince Ridge, of Vista La Mesa, has been named chairman of the 1951 San Diego Red Cross fund campaign. His appointment was announced Wednesday by Jesse Haugh, chairman of the fund planning committee, who headed the drive last year.

In announcing Ridge's appointment at the campaign headquarters, 936 Second Avenue, Haugh said, "In the present crisis the Red Cross faces a gigantic task to meet fully its responsibilities to the community and American fighting men over seas. This nation's wounded are now relying on the Red Cross to send them blood. The county is looking to the Red Cross to prepare it for disaster. It will be the job of the Red Cross to train a staggering number of persons in first aid and home nursing.

"The homeless will look to the Red Cross for help. The sick will turn to the Red Cross for encouragement. Wives whose husbands are suddenly drafted and who find themselves without adequate funds for a time will ask the Red Cross for temporary assistance.

"Fulfilling these needs and hundreds more is the job of the Red Cross. To do the job right will take funds. And to get those funds will be a man-sized job in itself. In announcing the appointment of Vince Ridge to paign I am pleased to say that I believe the Red Cross has the right man for the job. I wish him Godspeed."

In accepting the appointment Ridge said, "The Red Cross in 1951 will have one of the largest goals in its history in San Diego. I am certain that goal can be met. During the past year thousands of people in San Diego have shown their faith in the Red Cross when they have turned to it for help. I am sure that thousands more will express their faith in the Red Cross by pledging money to it."

Ridge said that in the past few people have seemed to realize that in giving to the Red Cross it is not necessary to make a cash donation during the March campaign. He said, "All that we intend to ask is that people pledge to give what they can afford during the year, in quarterly or monthly installments. Through year-round giving the Red Cross can do a topnotch year-round job."

Ridge said that he is now choosing division chairmen for the campaign throughout the city. Later in January, he said, he will be touring Red Cross branches throughout the county to draw up coordinated campaign plans.

Ridge urged that volunteers make their contribution to the Red Cross now by offering their services throughout the cam-

Saturday Was Biggest Day in City's History

The month of December was the banner month for shopping in Lemon Grove. Almost every week day saw the large free parking areas filled with cars from Lemon Grove and neighboring territory.

Anticipating unusual buying for the holiday seasons, local merchants had stocked heavily and many had to replenish stocks during the last two weeks.

Old timers here stated that last Saturday saw the largest number of cars ever parked on the streets of Lemon Grove. Buses coming in were crowded with shoppers from Spring Valley and other outlying territory.

Cars were double parked the full length of the double parking areas on both sides of Broadway and Main, Imperial and other side streets were crowded with cars.

Nearly all the merchants used space in the Review exclusively for advertising and many have stated to a Review representative that they are more than ever convinced that advertising consistently in the home paper pays and pays.

Many people were heard to express satisfaction and pleasure that with the new stores recently opened they did not have to go out of Lemon Grove to shop for a single item. for Christmas.

The new year will see many new stores opening and Lemon Grove will soon be a favorite shopping center where business people are courteous and anxious to please, where prices are right and where parking is plentiful and free.

Postal Business Heaviest This Year

The postal business at the local postoffice was the heaviest of any year since the office was established here.

Eight hundred thirty-nine sacks of parcel post mail was dispatched from this office during the month of November, and aproximately 800 sacks were received for distribution to Lemon Grove residents.

The postoffice force put in a hard week just before Christmas, and every parcel of mail was delivered before the clerks quit work on Christmas Day.

Honors Retiring Aid Officers

Retiring officers of the Ladies' Aid of Lutheran Church were honored by Mrs. Gus Brandel, 2475 Mc Knight, at her home Tuesday evening. Those included were Mrs. Virgil Dues, president; Mrs. Pat Tormondson, vice president; Mrs. Palmer Svalstad, secretary; Mrs. Sam Hagen, treasurer; Mrs. Otto Schlict, Mrs. Gus Brandel, Mrs. W. Leroy Elster, Mrs. Ingor Tormondson, secretaries of departments.

New officers present were Mrs. Levi Selvig, president; Mrs. John Wick, vice president; Mrs. Donald Johnson, secretary; Mrs. Joe Motter, treasurer. Rev. Elster was also a guest.

Plans were made for the new year and committees for departments were formed.

The hostess served refreshments after the meeting using the Christmas theme for appointments.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

If the members of California's political fraternity had it within their power to push mountains, divert streams and switch valleys all around the state like men on a gigantic chessboard, the State's geographic face would be in for the same major operation that its political body is scheduled to undergo this coming year.

1951 is the year of reapportionment—the year when the politicians decide, wthin some limit, what manner of congressional and legislative representation the people of the State will be accorded.

As a matter of fact, it appears that California, with its tremendous population increase, will be granted seven new Congressmen for the next ten-year period. It will be up to Congress, early in January, to make that official. The State Legislature, however, will decide which districts within California shall receive additional representation.

In the matter of State Assemblymen, it is not a question of adding to the total, but rather of redistricting the wealth by carving out new Assembly District lines. It is not a prosaic matter, but one which can give greater or lesser strength to one political party or another and greater or lessed emphasis to one economic philosophy or another. For if the lines are drawn to slip conservative voters into districts where they are far outnumbered by liberal or radical voters, then the district, obviously, will not have conservative representation. The division can go either way, to the benefit of either political party, and if attempted is known as the practice of gerry-mandering.

The limits within which the Legislature must operate in redistricting as outlined by law are that districts "shall be as nearly equal in population as may be." There will be 80 Assembly Districts.

In regard to California's seven new Congressmen, politicos state that it appears three will be accorded Northern California and three the Southern part of the State—with one in doubt.

To date, the Assembly Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment, which has held preliminary meetings to decide how best to redivide the State politically, seems to lean toward granting Southern California the seventh Congressman due to its greater population growth. The new congressional total for California will be 30 representatives.

Also of importance is the fact that in determining a State's electoral college representation, the number of Representatives plus its two U. S. Senators will make the total. Henceforth, in other words, California will have 32 members of the electoral college instead of 25 and thus gain tremendously in national political power—poower in electing a president and in the Halls of Congress.

So while California's politicians aren't going to rearrange its mountains, the voters may be sure that what will happen with reapportionment is just as momentous politically.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAIS

Ever since the disaster two years ago at Donora, Pennsylvania, brought death to 20 people and illness to 6000, air pollution —smog, it's called in California, has been a much discussed problem in every industrial city, large and small.

Even the experts don't all agree as to what smog is, what causes it or the extent of its potential damage.

At a hearing the other day of an Assembly interim committee on air and water pollution, a director of the Stanford Research Institute testified that most of Los Angeles' smog comes from burning fuel and refuse. Of the 50,000 tons of such material burned in Los Angeles each day, he estimates that 4 or 5 per cent—some 2 or 3 thousand tons—is "discharged into the atmosphere, where it floats as unpleasant gases or particles."

At an earlier hearing, doctors testified that smog may be a cause of lung cancer and that there are more deaths on smoggy days than on clear days. Studies showed that in the last three years, there has been an average of more than 100 "excess" respiratory and cardiac deaths in Los Angeles County during severely smoggy days as compared to smog-free periods.

California has a three-year old law permitting air pollution control on a county basis. Under it, Los Angeles County has taken aggressive steps to fight smog, and according to Gordon Larson, head of the County's Air Pollution Control District, smog has been reduced 35 percent in the last two years. This estimate is disputed, however, by some experts who claim that industrial expansion actually is accelerating more rapidly than the pollution control program.

Though most prevalent in the huge Los Angeles industrial area, smog is by no means unknown in the other regions of the State. The smell of smog is becoming a more common ocurrence, for example, even in the Bay Area, long noted for its natural air-conditioning system of prevailing westerly ocean breezes.

At the interim committee hearing last week, San Francisco's Mayor Elmer Robinson pointed out that insofar as the Bay Area is concerned, where one county's smog may be caused by an adjoining county's industries, California's present smog law is useless.

Robinson stated that while he has always favored local autonomy, it would seem in the case of air and water pollution that "California must adopt a law with teeth in it and possibly put the whole subject in charge of the State health office or some other agency with powers to set up and enforce regulations."

Both Mayor Robinson and Assemblyman Randal F. Dickey, chairman of the interim committee, warned that failure of the State to act might well lead to Federal intervention.

The Charging White Horsemen Of World War I Still a Mystery

By BILLY ROSE

As I've mentioned before, whenever I come down with a case of brain-blank I smash the crystal on a cheap wrist watch and mosey down to see an old watchmaker on West 11th Street. While he's tinkering with the timepiece, I gab with him about this and that and by the time I leave my watch has a new crystal and I generally have the material for a column.

The other afternoon I noticed an unusual looking clock on his repair bench—one with symbols on the dial instead of numerals.

Billy Rose

"It's a Bavarian miracle clock," said the watchmaker, "and each symbol stands for a different miracle. For instance, the little fish represents the miracle of the loaves and fishes."

"Do you believe in that sort of thing?" I asked.

"Whether you think so or not," smiled the old man, "miracles happen all the time. For instance, take the fire in Canada a couple of months ago—the one that wiped out almost the entire town but didn't touch the church."

"It could have been air currents," I said.

"Maybe," said the watchmaker, "but how would you explain away the cross in the sky that two thousand Englishmen swore they saw during an air raid in 1944? Or would you rationalize the white horsemen who are accredited with winning two battles in the first World War?"

"TAKE YOUR TIME with the watch and details," I said

"Well," said the old gent, "the first time the horsemen appeared was in August, 1914, when the Germans were advancing through a big hole in the Allied line at Mons. One night when it looked as if there was no stopping them, the sky suddenly turned yellow and across it—heading straight for the Jerries—rode three white figures mounted on white horses, the center rider waving a gold-tipped sword. The enemy took one look, and that was the end of the advance."

"Sounds like somebody was seeing things," I said.

"Thousands of people were seeing things—and they ranged from privates to generals. And later that night when several hundred of the Germans were captured, to a man they reported having seen the figures, too.

"The white horsemen didn't show up again until four years later," the watchmaker went on, "and this time they brought along a lot of friends. It was during the last German push along the Bethune line, and when a Portugese regiment cracked up under the artillery fire a handful of British machine-gunners were rushed in to plug the hole. The gunners knew they didn't have a chance of getting out alive—all they could hope for was to keep the enemy busy until reinforcements arrived.

THEN CAME THE miracle. Suddenly the German guns switched their range and direction, and began blasting a patch of ground several hundred yards to the right of the machine-gunners—an area that was completely deserted. And then half an hour later, for no discernible reason, the Germans turned tail and began to run.

"At first, the British couldn't believe their eyes; then they figured it was some sort of trick—although under the circumstances it didn't make military sense to bother with a trick. Finally the English sent out a reconnaissance squad, and it brought back fifty prisoners from various parts of the line.

"Each prisoner was examined separately and, according to Captain C. W. Haywood of British Intelligence, each one told exactly the same story.

"When the Portugese regiment retreated, the Germans began to chase after it and only stopped when they saw a detachment of cavalry riding forward from the Allied line to outflank them. This confused them because, for one thing, cavalry had long been obsolete on the Western Front and, for another, every member of the detachment was dressed in white and riding a white horse.

"The artillery was immediately ordered to bombard the horsemen, but when the men in white continued charging across the open field despite the curtain of shells, the Germans got panicky and fled."

"How about the English gunners?" I said

"That's the strangest part of it," said the watchmaker. "Captain Haywood made careful inquiry among his men but he couldn't find a single British soldier who had seen anything in the empty space to the right—except space."

Why We Should Use the Atomic Bomb on Our Enemies

by Bill Henry
in Los Angeles Times

"The Russians," the big man was saying, "have accomplished something I would not have believed it possible for them to do—they have just about persuaded the civilized world that it would be wicked to use the only weapon which has prevented civilization from being overrun!"

The A-BOMB—He's a sensible man, and well informed and respected, and one whose Christianity is well established. He knows our own problems and he knows more than a little about the Soviet. "I've come to the conclusion," he said, "that the people who decry the use of the atom bomb are incapable of self-examination, and that they are without an understanding of the facts of life. In the first place they are subject to the suspicion of cowardice unless they have a history of having protested against the use of all other weapons—a man who thought a 105-mm. field gun or the 16-inch gun on a battleship or the bombs used by planes in the last war were all right is certainly open to the suspicion, when he opposes the use of the atom bomb, that his only basis for protest is that while he always thought he would never be hit by a more conventional weapon he's scared to death now that he will be hit by an atom bomb."

DEVASTATION—He began to warm up to his subject as he went along "These people who complain that the A-bomb is dreadful because it hurts innocent persons—civilians, and non-combatants—never had any qualms apparently about a siege which starved civilians, or about a phony war such as took place in 1939-40 and which destroyed families, firms, and turned innocent people into homeless, unemployed, starving refugees without a shot being fired. The thing that is wrong is not the weapon—it is war itself. War is the thing to which you resort when all civilized and legal methods have failed. It is a thing of last resort. It is a matter of survival, and the use of any weapon is justified, for your opponent—presuming that your cause is right."

CIVILIZATION—He was approaching the high point of his argument. "You must always remember that civilization is notable for the superior intelligence of its people. The difference between civilization and barbarism is the difference between brain and brawn. The civilized man, being interested in something more than survival, develops tools and machines and devices which enable him to accomplish things which the savage cannot do. The civilized man produces more crops per acre, more production per man-hour, more new ideas per person. And since barbarism is always envious of civilization, and the muscle man always seeks to take away the products developed by the mind man, the civilized man had to develop weapons with which to overcome the advantage in muscle, and in numbers, held by the barbarians. There have always been more savages than civilized people and civilization has survived only by using its superior intelligence to develope protective weapons."

SURVIVAL—This was his point, then. "I have no doubt that when man was, in the beginning, forced to develope some weapon which would overcome the superior size and savagery of beasts, the animals took a pretty poor view of the man's development of the spear, and bow and arrow. The lion no doubt thought this very unfair and would like to have persuaded man to lay aside his superior weapon and meet him on a strictly claw-and-fang basis. Well—that's what we have today. It is no problem at all to establish that the hundreds of millions of ignorant people enslaved by the Kremlin's dictators far outnumber the civilized, free people. What could be more natural than that the Kremlin, prevented from overrunning the free world only by fear of the A-bomb superiority, should regard the A-bomb superiority as an unfair advantage. Nothing surprising about that—that's the way the animals felt about man and his spear in the dawn period of life on the earth. The really astonishing thing, however, is that presumably civilized persons should listen to this propaganda and not only believe it, but advocate it. That is not only suicidal but an indication that many well-meaning persons who are enjoying the luxury of living in a civilized world do not possess intelligence to match. Winston Churchill exposed the argument against the A-bomb very well when he said it means 'that you don't use the A-bomb until after your enemy has shot you dead!'"

Public Notices

Re the Proposed Annexation to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District.

RESOLUTION OF INTENTION TO ANNEX UNINCORPORATED TERRITORY TO THE LEMON GROVE SANITATION DISTRICT AND NOTICE OF HEARING THEREON

On motion of Supervisor Howell, seconded by Supervisor Gibson, the following resolution is adopted and notice is ordered by the Board of Supervisors of San Diego County:

WHEREAS, Henry W. and Martha Perry Collett, the owners of certain property in unincorporated territory of the County of San Diego contiguous to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District, have asked this Board (Document No. 126387) to annex said property to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District under the provisions of the County Sanitation District Act; and

WHEREAS, the County Boundary Commission has approved the boundaries of the proposed annexation (Document No. 126956); and

WHEREAS, investigation of the proposed annexation by the Division of Engineering of the Department of Public Works discloses that said property is contiguous to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District and that it would be desirable and feasible to sewer said property by extension of said District's lines (Document No. 126387); NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED:

(a) That it is the intention of the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Diego to annex to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District under the provisions of the County Sanitation District Act all of that contiguous unincorporated territory of the County of San Diego, none of which is now included in any other county sanitation district or other district or districts formed for similar purposes, bounded and described as follows:

(b) All that portion of the unincorporated territory of the County of San Diego, State of California, lying within the following described boundary line:

Commencing at the intersection of the Southerly line of Lot 1 of Lemon Grove Addition No. 1, according to Map thereof No. 731, filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Diego County, California, with the Easterly line of the Westerly 172 feet of said Lot 1, said intersection being a point in the Easterly boundary line of the Lemon Grove Sanitation District; thence Northerly along said Easterly line of the Westerly 172 feet of Lot 1; to an intersection with the Northerly line of the Southerly 200 feet of said Lot 1; thence Easterly along said Northerly line of the Southerly 200 feet of Lot 1 to an intersection with the Westerly line of the Easterly 240 feet of said Lot 1; thence Southerly along said Westerly line of the Easterly 240 feet of Lot 1 to an intersection with the Southerly line of said lot; thence Westerly along said Southerly line of Lot 1 to the point of commencement.

(c) That the Lemon Grove Sanitation District following said annexation shall continue to be known by that name;

(d) That the Board of Supervisors hereby sets Monday, the 15th day of January, 1951, at the hour of 10:30 o'clock, a. m., in the Chamber of the Board of Supervisors, Room 310, San Diego City and County Administration Building, Civic Center, San Diego, California, as the time and place fixed for the hearing of objections to the annexation of said territory to said District, or to the extent thereof.

(e) That the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors is hereby authorized and instructed to publish this resolution of intention and notice of hearing thereon at length in at least two successive issues not more than 30 nor less than 10 days prior to the time of said hearing in the Lemon Grove Review, a newspaper of general circulation in the County of San Diego, in the territory proposed to be annexed, and in the Lemon Grove Sanitation District.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Diego, State of California, this 11th day of December, 1950, by the following vote:

AYES: Supervisors Gibson, Bird, Robbins, Rossi and Howell.
NOES: Supervisors None.
ABSENT: Supervisors None.

FARM NEWS

NEW BULLETIN ON CITRUS INJURY

An illustrated bulletin on citrus fruit injury by freezing temperatures has been published by the University of California College of Agriculture, according to Farm Advisor J. J. Coony, of San Diego County. It is available through the office of the Agricultural Extension Service, Building One, 4005 Rosecrans Street, San Diego 10.

The bulletin, entitled "Freeze injury and subsequent seasonable changes in Valencia oranges and grapefruit," is based on research with fruit from Southern California groves affected by the heavy freeze of 1948-49.

The authors, staff members of the Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside, are: E. T. Bartholomew, professor emeritus of plant physiology; W. B. Sinclair, biochemist; and R. P. Horspool, laboratory technician.

The project was conducted to aid growers and fruit handlers in making early estimates of crop damage. Here are some of the results:

Young, immature fruits injured by frost make a better recovery than mature or nearly mature fruits. Therefore, in Southern California Valencias, young lemons and grapefruit have a better chance for recovery than navel oranges which usually are mature by the time of low temperatures.

Under conditions in the spring, summer and early fall of 1949, mature Valencias remained on trees from early May until mid-August without shoowing a decrease in quality. But there was a small decrease from mid-August to October 10 when fruits were picked.

Excessive peel thickness was not common. Injury to the white part of the peel and to the surface was rare.

The water-soaked appearance, gray or milky color, and hesperidin crystals disappeared from the fruit within three months after it was frozen. The same is true with gelatinized vesicles (juice sacs), except in severely frozen fruits.

Wavy segment walls and light yellow, grainy condition of some vesicles did not disappear. Where hollow places occured because of dead segments, the remaining, non-injured segments enlarged to fill, or partially fill, the gaps.

Granulation was much less severe in the 1949 Valencias than in most years, contrary to the belief of some growers that it is caused by low temperatures.

Freeze injury was more severe for grapefruit borne on the outside of the tree than those on the inside.

REFINISH FURNITURE AT HOME

Anyone can save and restore well constructetd pieces of furniture and enjoy them all the more because they, themselves, have helped to beautify them. Home Advisor Delphine D. Wilson, of the University of California Agriculturay Extension Service, says only three things are necessary, but they are necessary in large quantities: patience, time and energy.

There are three steps to follow in the refinishing process whether it is for furniture, woodwork or floors. First, remove the old finish, second, prepare the surface for the new finish, and third, apply it.

When the old finish is hard and brittle it may be scraped off with a putty knife, a varnish scraper, or a peach peeling knife. Work carefully with the grain so as not to dig into the wood. Varnish and paint remover may be purchased from any reliable paint dealer or made at home. However, the commercial removers are safer. After using a remover, wipe the wood with a cloth moistened in turpentine or denatured alcohol to stop the action of the remover.

Dents can be raised in the surface if the fibers of the wood have not been broken. Place a wet cloth or wet blotting paper over the dent and carefully apply heat with a heated iron. The warm moisture will swell the wood and raise it back to its normal position.

To smooth the surface, sand it well with No. 1 sand paper, then with No. 00 sand paper, then with medium-fine steel wool, dusting between each sanding until the wood is satin smooth. Dust the surface the last time with a cloth slightly moistened in turpentine to remove all traces of sawdust. Always work with the grain of the wood.

Woods may be finished with oil, varnish, seals, shellac, paint, enamel or wax. Personal taste, the kind of wood, and the use to which it will be put all determine what type of finish is best.

High School News

The Real Estate Law Class of Grossmont Union High School will continue its course next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. The general laws of real estato and also the current cases of the California Supreme Court and Appellate Court relating to real estate are studied, showing how the laws are applied by our courts to actual facts. All adults are welcomed to this class. George J. Haines is the instructor.

Betty May Edens the Bride of Ralph Thomas

Plighting their troth before an altar banked with poinsettas in Brooklyn Heights Presbyterian Church, Miss Betty May Edens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Edens, 7884 Broadway, became the bride of Ralph F. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Thomas of El Cajon, on Christmas Eve.

The Rev. Ellis Shaw read the rites in the presence of 250 guests, preceding which Miss Betty Vance sang solos, accompanied at the organ by Carl Dewse.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in an original gown of candlelight satin styled with strapless bodice. A chantilly lace jacket completed the ensemble. A coronet of pearls and orange blossoms held her fingertip veil. The bride carried a white prayer book, on which was placed a white orchid, the book being a gift of her grandfather, Richard Hohmann, of New York City.

Gowned in emerald green satin, Mrs. Bennie F. Edens, Jr., served her sister-in-law as matron of honor. She wore red carnations in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of red carnations.

Others attendants were Mrs. Ed Thomas, sister of the bride, Mrs. Leonard Busch (Peggy Vance), and Mrs. Olive Smith, bridesmaids, all of whom wore gowns of dusty rose satin, carrying cascades of dusty rose carnations. Peggy Jo Thomas, niece of Miss Edens, served as flower girl and wore a frock similar to that of the bridesmaids.

Dick Wilkinson was best man, and ushers included Walter Stoltze, Fred Bates, Leonard Bush and Ben Edens Jr., brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a gown of aqua crepe wiith black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother chose a gown of navy blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Stone, with whom she made her home, wore dusty rose with black accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The bride chose for traveling, a suit of navy blue with orange accessories.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Hohmann of San Diego, the couple left for a wedding trip to Laguna Beach and Sequoia National Park.

Another sister, Mrs. Dorothy Krutzsch, who could not be present at the ceremony, was honored by having the bride select the date of her birthday for the wedding.

The Thomases will make their home at 2866 West Nicolet, Banning, where Mr. Thomas teaches in elementary school. He was graduated from State College and affiliated with Sigma Chi. Miss Edens also studied at State College and is a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Last Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Edens presided at a buffet dinner for the wedding party at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Stone.

Congregational Church Activities

Undoubtedly the most important and impressive part of the Christmas Sunday Celebration at the First Congregational Church was the ceremony in which 4 children were dedicated to the Lord, 11 children baptized, 4 adults were baptized and 15 adults were received into the fellowship of the church. This brings the total of new members received in 1950 to 102.

The children who were dedicated to the Lord, are: Marlo Jean and Jack Nicholas Botu, children of Mr. and Mrs. Marion N. Botu. Paulette Irene and Marcia Elizabeth Mize, children of Sgt. and Mrs. Paul A. Mize.

The children who were baptized are: Henry and Donald Nottingham, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Nottingham; James Russel Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Hopkins; Neila Gene Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Vaughn Bethanne Kraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Kraft; Robert W., Jack Howard, and Marcia Ann Von Willer, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Von Willer; Edylee and Douglas James Sheridan, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sheridan; Daniel Allen Cass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cass.

Adults who were baptized are: Jack Griggs and his son Lewis Grigga, Mrs. Robert W. Von Willer and Ralph D. Kraft. Sgt. and Mrs. Paul Mize will be baptized by immersion in the near future.

Adults, who were received into the fellowship of tthe church are: Ronald Wessenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griggs, and their son Lewis Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Von Willer, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Damon Kraft, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Vaughn, Sgt. and Mrs. Paul Andrew Mize, Mrs. James Russel Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Nottingham.

Special musical numbers included in the service were: "Cantique De Noel" sung by Mrs. Yvonne Johnson; "Arise Shine" and the "Halleluja Chorus" sung by the 30 voice adult choir.

Four hundred thirty-nine persons attended the morning services.

Camp Fire Girls

Camp Fire girls of the Wa-da-Ta-Ka group met Thursday of last week and went to Hill Top Chateau to sing Christmas Carols. They took along a box of fresh fruit and cookies to present to Mrs. Elizabeth Pfaus, in whom they have long been interested.

Camp Fire Girls of Lemon Grove had a happier Christmas through making the holiday happier for less fortunate people.

Three large Christmas boxes of canned goods, fresh meat and vegetables were given to three needy families, names of whom were furnished by the school nurse.

The Business Women's League furnished the meat.

Girl Scout News

Seventeen girls of Girl Scout Troop, No. 361, hiked to Encanto Park for a weiner roast and Christmas party. They completed the "Out of Door" requirement for their second class badge then and they were presented with their troop crest, a Cardinal. They were accompanied by Mrs. Elmer Carlson, leader; Mrs. Carolyn Gray, co-leader, and Mrs. Guy Winton.

School News

(Held Over From Last Week)

In Mrs. Tait's third grade, a lovely Christmas party was planned by Mrs. Charley Huber and Mrs. Vernon Huffman. After colorful and tasty refreshments, Santa gave each child a candy cane. The exchange of gifts was an exciting part of the party. The class also welcomed Mrs. Maurice Pratt and Mrs. Maurice Avery to the party.

In the fifth grade, Mr. Masters room, the class party included a bingo game, brought by Beverly Cook, a visit from Santa, the exchange of gifts, and refreshments, ice cream and cookies. Room mothers assisted. The fifth graders wish to thank the school student council for the Christmas trees given each classroom. They were decorated with balls, stars, and tinsel. Many of the ornaments were made by the students.

Children of Mrs. Ovella Mason's second grade class invited their parents to their Christmas party last Friday.

After a short program given by the children, everyone present received a gift from the Christmas tree. The boys and girls had made gifts for their parents.

Refreshments were served by the room mothers, Mrs. F. V. Greenlee, and Mrs. Milo McCoy, assisted by Mrs. G. L. Hopkins.

to serve food and coffee to those who give their blood. Nurses aides will have a large responsibility in assisting the Red Cross nurses with each day's drawing of blood.

Blood given to the Red Cross for the Armed Forces will be used in one of two ways. Depending on the military needs at the time, it will either be flown or shipped out immediately as whole blood to forward areas or it will be processed into plasma and stockpiled for military use wherever needed.

The blood unit stationed at Naval Hospital on December 27 was sent here from the Tucson Red Cross Regional Blood Center. Next week a unit will be down from Los Angeles on a date yet to be announced. The Tucson and Los Angeles Red Cross blood centers will alternate in helping the San Diego chapter with its blood recruitment until delivery of San Diego's Red Cross blood mobile.

Churchill Supports Attlee

THERE is a certain vein of similarity running through the lives of the two men who conferred regarding the course to be followed by the British and American governments toward future war or peace.

Prime Minister Attlee and President Truman both are left-of-center liberals, both have spent much of their lives in government, both have tried to work for the less-privileged sector of the British and American people.

Neither is considered a strong man in his own country, neither is a man of much imagination, neither has the force, the flair, the genius of two others who conferred a great deal during the past decade —Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

However, Clement Attlee, in his quiet way and backed by a powerful labor party, has put across a schedule of socialist legislation which staid old Britons never dreamed could happen.

And while these reforms were passed in the face of vigorous conservative opposition, nevertheless, Attlee today has one important advantage over President Truman. He has the support of his opponent, Winston Churchill, when it comes to foreign policy.

Churchill Advised Trip

Furthermore, he has the support of most of the Conservative party. On the other hand, Truman of late has had the bitter, sometimes vitriolic opposition of a majority of Republican senators in regard to almost every foreign-policy move he has made.

Attlee not only was careful to get Churchill's support before he left London, but Churchill even advised him on how to force Truman's hand regarding the trip.

What happened was that immediately after the Prime Minister heard of Truman's atom-bomb statement, he called on Churchill. Though political opponents, the two served in the same coalition war cabinet together and are personal friends. At one time Attlee was Churchill's deputy prime minister, and handled British domestic affairs while Churchill was busy with the war.

With this background of friendship, it is not hard to understand why Attlee should have consulted Churchill or that Churchill advised him that he should take the trip to Washington. Furthermore, Churchill suggested that inasmuch as Truman might be opposed to the trip, Attlee should make a premature announcement of his plan—thus making it impossible for Truman to decline. This was why news of Attlee's plans prematurely leaked from London.

Churchill also promised Attlee that no effort would be made to overthrow the Labor government while he was away.

Attlee's Tory Background

Though Truman and Attlee have much in common politically, Attlee came from more conservative surroundings. His father was a Tory lawyer and president of the British equivalent to the American Bar Association. After studying at England's ritziest schools and being admitted to the bar, however, young Attlee suddenly became a social worker. At the age of 24 he went to work and lived in Limehouse, one of London's workmen's districts, and he has made his life with labor ever since.

Unlike Mr. Truman, who frequently lapses into Missouri mule-driver's language, Attlee's diction is cultured, sometimes poetic. In fact, he has written some widely quoted poems, one of them regarding his own workingmen's district, which reads:

"I hear the feet of many men who go their way . . .
Through streets that have no pity,
and streets where men decay."

Repairs Own Pipes

Attlee is married to Violet Helen Millar, and for many years they lived with their four children in a modest house in a London suburb where Attlee did a little gardening and repaired his own pipes in his own carpenter's shop.

Unlike Truman, Attlee is a halting, none-too-forceful speaker. When he speaks impromptu, he hesitates and repeats. The President, on the other hand, is at his best when speaking off the cuff. In conferences, Attlee tries to win his point by charm and persuasion. The President sometimes gets impatient and petulant.

When Foreign Minister Molotov visited Truman a few days after Roosevelt's death while en route to the San Francisco conference, the new President spent 45 minutes bawling him out. There have been many occasions when Molotov deserved such a scolding.

In Europe, Attlee and his government are considered among the most vigorous of all opponents to communism, and it is sometimes predicted that, in case the Russians overran Europe, the Attlee cabinet would be the first to suffer.

SHORT STORY

Change Of Pace

By Willard Olvan Persing

3-Minute Fiction

"I don't care if you have to buy a sawmill to get that lumber, just see that it gets there today!"

Mike Clanahan slammed the phone back on its cradle, mumbling to himself about young pups who quit trying as soon as they'd heard 'No' mentioned a time or two.

The slender, black-haired girl, sitting on the corner of his desk, grinned at him. "Pops, if everyone bulled their way through like you do, there'd be quite a crop of cracked heads."

As he looked up at his daughter, Mike's face softened into a smile. "Something on your mind, Cathy?"

"Yes, but I think this job is a little too delicate for your methods." She stared out the window for a moment before continuing.

"James refuses to marry me," she said. "Now, he's decided that it's better if we don't even see each other any more."

"Refuses to marry you!" The windows rattled as Mike came up out of his chair. "Why I'll—"

Cathy's frown put Mike back into his chair. "That's what I mean about your methods. I'd like to have enough of him left to carry me over the threshold."

"Why won't he marry you?"

"Rich girl, poor boy. He says he won't have it appear that he married me for my money."

Mike stared thoughtfully at her. "You really love him, don't you?"

Cathy nodded her head.

"All you need," Mike said as he leaned back and stared at the ceiling, "is just a diamond-studded, fourteen-carat miracle."

"That's a thought to cheer a girl's heart," Cathy gave her father a wry glance. "That is, if you have an extra miracle you won't be needing for a few days."

MIKE CLOSED HIS eyes and studied a moment. "I could arrange for a high-salaried job to fall his way."

"Pops, please don't try anything like that. If he found that we had a hand in it, he would probably leave town. Your tactics are about as subtle as those of an old billy goat."

"All right, so I'm not in the habit of pussy-footing around," growled Mike. "What are you going to do?"

"Same as I have been doing. Argue some more and try to wear him down."

"That settles that." Mike stood up and absently walked over to get his hat and coat. "You want me to drop you off at home? I've got to run over to the hospital."

"The hospital?"

"Yes, old Zeke, the fellow who owns the newsstand down on the corner, thinks he's going to die, and I thought some company might cheer him up."

Cathy frowned. "He must be the one who has been giving me some competition. James spends two or three nights a week, playing chess and arguing politics with some old fellow named Zeke."

Mike stopped and stared at Cathy. "Come on," he said hurriedly, "if I don't get a move on, visiting hours will be over before I get there."

"Pops, please don't try anything," Cathy said. "Your tactics are about as subtle as those of an old billy goat."

The windows were still rattling from Mike's conversation when he slammed the phone back into its cradle and glanced up at the young woman who was struggling to keep the exasperated expression on her face.

"Mike Clanahan, I thought you were asked to keep your strong-arm tactics out of my love affair."

Mike grinned up at her. "What do you mean?"

"You know very well what I mean." Cathy's stern expression broke into a happy laugh. She came around the desk and kissed him on the forehead.

"But I still don't know—"

"Don't play innocent with me. Having Zeke leave everything to James was a stroke of genius. But what I want to know is how you managed to get forty-seven thousand dollars in old bills hidden in Zeke's room."

"Did it work?"

Cathy held her left hand up in front of Mike's face. A diamond on the third finger twinkled merrily at him.

Robert Burns' Auld Lang Syne New Year Boon

"AULD LANG SYNE" has become such an integral part of our modern New Year's eve that no celebration, however gay, would be complete without it.

The music sheets for those nostalgic strains simply say "Robert Burns—Scotch Air," and Robert Burns generally is supposed to have written it after he had settled down on a farm and taken himself a wife, following the sweeping success in 1778 of the second edition of his "Poems." Well and good, but Auld Lng Syne was not exclusively Burns' product, nor did he claim it to be.

In a letter to George Thomson, a publisher, Burns explained:

"It is an old song of olden times, which has never been in print. I took it down from an old man's singing."

Modern scholarship has discovered that Burns was wrong when he told Thomson "Auld Lang Syne" never had been in print. Its refrain, at least, was printed obscurely long before Burns heard his "old man singing." In Watson's collection of songs (published in 1711), these verses were attributed to Francis Sempill, who died in 1682.

Further, the original song often has been credited to Sir Robert Aytoun (1570-1638). Aytoun was one of the earliest Scots to use the Lowland dialect as a literary medium. Multitudes of Americans descended from non-British stock are perpetually mystified by this dialect, nor does it seem to make much sense in the standard English translation which comes out "Old Long Since."

Regardless of its original author or origin, it was Burns who gave "Auld Lang Syne" its immortality. And though the bells now welcome the New Year with joyous peals symbolizing mankind's hope for a bright future, the nostalgia of "Auld Lang Syne" summarizes an inherent reluctance to leave the security and friendships of the past and embark upon a future which, however promising, may not be more pleasant. Thus, it remains a part of the English speaking heritage to

"Drink a cup of kindness yet For Auld Lang Syne."

GREETINGS . . . Some people sit around in night shirts, house slippers, and with their hair up in curlers waiting for the New Year. This picture is submitted as evidence to prove that other persons take a different view of the matter. Well, everyone to his own taste.

Tokyo Is Converted Into Green Forest Six Days Every Year

For the first six days of every year it has been the custom of the Japanese to convert Tokyo into a green forest. And although events have changed in Japan in the last few years, much of the city will be decorated.

On each side of the gate of every household that can afford it will be pine trees and bamboo, while ropes of rice straw and other decorations will grace the lintel.

It is a custom that goes back 900 years or so, this planting of a forest in a city for the space of six days. The pine, with its evergreen branches, is emblematic of eternity, and the straight trunk of the bamboo symbolizes truth and manly courage.

The third of this trio, the plum blossom, signifying womanly virtue, is not used in the out-of-doors decorations, but is within the house.

A pine tree stands on either side of the door, and with it are three, five or seven bamboos. There are other decorations peculiar to the New Year tide which are to be seen on every hand,

New Year Evokes Many Superstitions

There are a number of old superstitions and customs that have been observed for centuries and have come down almost to this day.

To bring good luck one must wear something new on the first day of the year, according to an old English custom.

In some parts of England and Scotland it is supposed to be unlucky to leave a house until some outsider has first entered it.

NEW YEAR FLING . . . Typical of Scotland's genius for uninhibited fun is this Highland dancer performing a traditional Scottish reel. The tartan kilt, velvet jacket and lace ruffles add color and grace to the Scottish Hogmanay celebrations. Hogmanay, incidentally, is the Scots' name for New Year's.

New Year Calls Were All the Rage In U.S. in 1900

The custom of making short calls on New Years' Day was in full swing in the United States around the turn of the century.

Newspapers carried columns of 'at home' notices specifying the hours during which visitors would be received. Hosts and hostesses, having duly received, closed their open house to become guests at somebody else's.

'Open House' on New Year's Day was introduced into America by the Dutch who settled in New Amsterdam. Friends were accustomed to dropping in to offer the compliments of the day and refreshments centered around homemade snacks, plus the host's favorite concoction of punch.

The custom grew with the country, finally attaining the newspaper announcement stage, with its eventual time-table and scurrying from one 'open house' to another. It was inevitable that some guests, after a succession of nine or ten punch bowls, sometimes embarrassed their tenth or eleventh hostess; and receptions sometimes were 'crashed' by total strangers tempted by the possibility of free punch.

Perhaps it is just as well that the publicly announced New Year reception is no longer a la mode. If only a small percentage of city dwellers inserted 'at home' notices in their favorite metropolitan newspapers, what colossal editions would result, what headaches for everybody, from the swamped linotype operators to the staggering newsboys.

Ten Days Were Killed In Calendar Change

Many things have been suppressed in this world, but the strangest was act of Pope Gregory III when he suppressed 10 days in 1852 by ordering that October 5 be called October 15.

It came about like this. January 1 was designated to be New Year's day when Julius Caesar established the Julian calendar in 46 B.C., However, the calendar year thus established was 11 minutes longer than the astronomical year.

For this reason the Pope ordered the 10 days suppressed.

England and its colonies, however, did not adopt the Julian calendar until 1752. For almost three centuries New Year's was celebrated twice every year—both times on January 1.

But New Year's isn't always New Year's day even in these modern times. The actual date varies among the Egyptians, Chinese, Jews, Romans and Mohammedans from September 6 to March 1.

Danes Eat Doughnuts, Toss Broken Crockery

What the Wassail is to Scotland on New Year's Eve, coffee and doughnuts are to Denmark.

The Danes also observe an unique crockery tossing tradition in connection with their doughnuts and coffee. Every piece of crockery which comes to grief during the year is saved for tossing against the doors of friends and neighbors on New Year's Eve in anticipation of being invited in for doughnuts and coffee.

The old calendar sign for the winter solstice was a circle with a dot in the center, representing the wheel of the sun. Could it be that the doughnut has come to represent the circle and the dot—well, there is a hole in the doughnut!

American New Year

New Year's day has long been celebrated enthusiastically in the United States, and from colonial times to the present it has been a day of great significance. The custom of visiting friends and relatives is one which has survived until the present. In the gay 90's this visiting back and forth attained a tremendous vogue and the young blades looked forward to it with keen anticipation.

HOGMANAY

St. Andrews' Day Touches off Scots' New Year Doings

The celebration of St. Andrew's Day touches off a series of Scottish celebrations that reach their peak at New Year (Hogmanay) and continue with little respite to Burn's Day on the 25th of January.

Few national festivals occasion more uninhibited gusto over more of the world's face. From Houston to Hong Kong, Scots of all vintages dream of haggis, heather, highlands and the skirl of bagpipes. Indeed, they spare no effort to make the dream come true. The Illinois St. Andrew's Society, for instance, have been known to "fly-in" their supply of haggis and heather direct from Scotland, and to have "piped it" all the way from the airport to the dinner table.

One of the most engaging customs of Hogmanay is the ancient rite of "first-shooting" in the "wee sma' hours" of New Year's morning. A "First-foot" is literally the first person outside the family, to cross the threshold of the home after the clock has ushered the Old Year into history. For the best of portents, the visitor, if a man, should be dark and handsome; if a woman, she must be fair. In either case, the visitor should carry "handsel," which may be anything from an orange to a bottle of whiskey. You don't have to ask a Scot his preference, but an empty-handed "first-foot" will bring poverty and privation, so even an orange is worthwhile.

Assuming that the "handsel" is in liquid form, the head of the house takes the first drink and then passes the bottle round the family. Thus fortified, all attack the traditional Hogmanay fare; round shortbread cake nipped round the edges to simulate the sun (the Druids were responsible for this); and Black Bun, a superior sort of mince pie containing fruits, almonds, spices and brandy.

What happens after this is your own responsibility, but the Scots themselves ward off indigestion with music and dancing (with a capital D). Sometimes "first-footers" appear as "guizards" (a mummer or a strolling player) and the greater the number of first-footers," the more honored is the household. So nobody need be shy.

Those "not to the tartan born" may wonder why the Scots lay such stress on the New Year, rather than Christmas. To find the answer you have to flick back a page or two of history. The Vikings probably started the Yuletide festivities and the Christian reformers merely took it over and invested it with the dignity of the Feast of the Nativity.

HANDS ON THE TIME . . . Cecilia Bialy is lighting the old year out and the New Year in and making sure the hands of the clock get safely to midnight at the Old Sturbridge Village museum and crafts center in Sturbridge, Mass. The clock collection at the museum is one of the largest in the country.

New Year, 452 B.C.

Celebration of New Year's Day on January 1 began in Rome in 452 B.C. and therefore, contrary to logical reasoning, had nothing whatsoever to do with the birth of Christ.

The Julian calendar, effective by decree of Caesar in 46 B.C., was adjusted to the Christian era in 516 A.D. by Dionysius who meant to begin the era from the year of Christ's birth.

However, an error in chronology figured the event four years later than it actually occurred. Therefore, the latter half of the 20th century should have begun four years before 1950, and 1950 should have been 1954, really!

Gayest Day in Canada Is the 'Jour de l'An'

The famous "Jour de l'An"—New Year's day—is probably the gayest day in the calendar of the French-Canadian. That is the time of family re-unions and of exchanging of gifts.

It is a religious celebration also, with the city churches conducting midnight mass on New Year's eve, but in the rural areas there are no church services to celebrate the arrival of another year.

Japan's Social Order

The social order in Japan hadn't changed for centuries until MacArthur's occupation. The old families with their spacious homes of oriental splendor, their heirlooms passed down from generation to generation, their old schools of thought, made up only a small part of the nation. The shopkeeper eking out a bare living in his two-room abode, the coolie and the serf in his rice paddy, and millions of others on the over-populated islands existed on a daily bowl of rice and a piece of dried fish

Notre Dame Cathedral

Notre Dame cathedral in Paris, built during medieval times, is believed to occupy the site of an ancient Roman temple. A monument to Jupiter was excavated from beneath the cathedral in 1711.

"Baby-Proofing" Cupboards

Little children will be less likely to get into mischief in cupboards and medicine chests if a strip of cellophane tape is used to seal the doors. This also is effective against those prying fingers on chests of drawers.

Door to Knowledge

Invention of movable type by Johann Gutenberg in 1450 marked the transition from the Middle Ages to the modern age. Printing led to the spread of knowledge. From the old screw-type of press we have more recently come, through American inventions of typesetting machines and stereotyping processes, to giant newspaper presses that print with lightning speed in black and all colors of the rainbow. But the centuries-old type cases still have their place in every modern printing shop.

Cream of Tomato Soup

Soda added to cream of tomato soup may prevent it from curdling, but it is also likely to destroy the delicate flavor of the tomato and its vitamin C content. If care is used in making the soup, soda usually proves to be unnecessary.

Pruning Peach Trees

In recent years there is a tendency toward lighter pruning of peach trees than has been formerly practiced. It has been found that larger peach yields can be made by leaving more bearing

SO SORRY!

An officer of ancient Rome, called away to the wars, locked his beautiful wife in armor. Then he gave the key to his friend with the admonition:

"If I don't return in six months, use this key. To you, my dear friend, I entrust it."

He then galloped off to the war. About ten miles from home he saw a cloud of dust approaching and waited. His trusted friend, on horseback, galloped up and said:

"You gave me the wrong key."

Modern Methods

"Do you know," said the young student at the agricultural college to an old farmer, "your methods of cultivation are a hundred years behind the time?"

Looking around, he remarked, "Why, I'd be suprised if you made a dollar out of the oats in that field."

"So would I," smiled the farmer, "it's barley."

HIGHER EDUCATION

Mr. Biggs liked to know all about the employees who toiled in his vast business. One day he came upon a new young man who was dexterously counting out a large wad of the firm's cash.

"Where did you get your financial training, young man?" he asked.

"Yale," the young man answered.

Mr. Biggs was a staunch advocate of higher learning.

"Good," he said, "And what's your name?"

"Yackson," was the reply.

Misdirected Laugh

The boy's mother found him bawling in the basement.

"Willy, darling, what's the matter?"

"The hammer fell on Daddy's foot," sobbed Willy.

"Why, honey, that's nothing to cry about."

"I didn't cry," whimpered Willy. "I laughed!"

TOO MUCH TROUBLE

In one of his classic stories George Ade told of a thug who murdered his wife and then was put through five hours of grilling at the local police station. He finally exploded, "Gee whiz, Lieutenant, I'd never have killed her if I'd known there was gonna be all this red tape."

SENILE DELINQUENT

A group of prohibitionists looking for evidence of the advantage of total abstinence were told of an old man of 102 who had never touched a drop of liquor. They rushed to his home to get him up in bed and guiding his feeble hand along the dotted line, they heard a violent disturbance from the next room—furniture being broken, dishes being smashed, and the shuffling of feet.

"Good heavens, what's that?"

"Oh," whispered the old man as he sank exhaustedly into his pillow, "that's Pa, drunk again."

Take It Or Leave It

A fraternity sent its curtain to be laundered. The next morning a note arrived from the sorority across the street:

"Dear Sirs: May we suggest that you procure curtains for windows. We do not care for a course in anatomy."

The immediate answer read:

AROUND THE HOUSE

There are several effective ways to stiffen crocheted doilies and baskets. All involve dipping in something. One mixture calls for a tablespoonful of flour, tablespoonful of cornstarch, two-thirds of a cup of salt and a cup of water. Put it on the stove and stir it until it comes to a boil. When it's cool enough to handle, dip the basket in it. Easier solutions for the dipping are epsom salt (saturated), melted paraffin, laundry starch, or a thick sugar syrup. Whichever you use, dip the basket in; then shape it over a bowl of the appropriate size and let it dry (and stiffen) right on the bowl.

WHEN SLEEP WON'T COME AND YOU FEEL GLUM
Use Chewing-Gum Laxative—
REMOVES WASTE...NOT GOOD FOOD
● When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as MILLIONS do—chew FEEN-A-MINT.
FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different! Doctors say many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon...right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy...you feel weak, worn out.
But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25c, 50c, or only 10¢

S. D. Chamber Files Report

turned to the county.

The State Legislature should authorize the appropriation of funds for the construction of a bridge on U. S. Highway No. 80 over Lake Hodges at an elevation to provide clearance over the lake when the SuperHodges dam is built by the city of San Diego to replace the present inadequate, narrow and dangerous structure now forming a bottleneck on this otherwise complete and modern freeway.

Special legislative consideration should be given to the construction of a grade separation over Pacific Highway (U.S. 101) in the vicinity of Date Street to make possible, without interference to Pacific Highway traffic, an east-west artery. Pacific Highway is carrying such a heavy volume of commercial, industrial and passenger car traffic that its creates a moat which east-west traffic cannot ford, thus forcing traffic to further congest the business district of the city.

Other Critical Needs:

The east-west State Highway (Route 78) from Oceanside via Vista, Escondido, Ramona, Santa Ysabel and Julian to the Imperial County line is totally inadequate as a farm to market road and to care for trafffic. It is far below acceptable secondary highway standards.

U. S. Highway 94 in the state secondary system is one of the most hazardous roads in this county. It must receive attention at an early date in order to eliminate death-trap curves and unnegotiable grades which prevent the use of this highway for anything but slow recreational travel.

U. S. Highway 80, our only primary connection between the port of San Diego, Imperial Valley and Arizona points, has had some work done on it in the past two years, but it is far below primary highway standards and at the present rate of progress will not approach comparability with competing routes to the north for a period of 20 or 30 years. U. S. Highway 80 was the pioneer highway connection between San Diego, Imperial and Arizona points and was developed largely at the instigation of pioneer San Diego citizens. This route has been neglected and the state has constructed at least two other highly competitive routes to high standards.

It is imperative that U. S. Highway 101 from Carlsbad south to the city limits of San Diego, be developed as a freeway at the earliest practical time, without bisecting the costal communities.

There is need for a Highway connection between U. S. Highway 101 at a point north of Del Mar to a connection with U. S. 395.

San Diego is extremely interested in a connection between U. S. 395 and the Santa Ana Canyon and feels that the Perris-Temecula cut-off would be of major benefit to this community.

The above brief outline of some of the more vital projects in this community gives emphasis to but a few of the peace time needs of our expanding economy. These needs will be multiplied ten fold should the international conditions continue to show the same trend as they have during the past few weeks.

SHORT STORY

Fresh Fish

By Richard H. Wilkinson

"IN HEAVEN'S NAME," Tommy Hunter cried, "why can't we get married? We love each other! There is nothing that stands between our complete happiness, but the consent of a bl——"

"Of my father, Tommy," Dolores interrupted him gently. "That is a big obstacle, my dear. In my country, girls do not marry without the consent of their parents. It is tradition, Tommy."

3-Minute Fiction

"Rats!" said Tommy. "You mean you won't break it! You don't love me!"

"Tommy!"

"All right," he said. "I can't see it your way, but I guess I've got to take it and like it."

He left her abruptly, crossed the sun-bathed patio of the old Spanish hacienda and entered the door on the opposite side.

Inside the small room Tommy saw a white-haired old man taking his ease in a chair near a window.

"Senor Jacinto," the youth began, "I come to you again and for the last time and in all humbleness to ask the hand of your daughter, I—"

"And for the last time," interrupted the old man angrily, "I refuse. My daughter is descended from a noble and proud family. She deserves a husband of distinction and wealth."

"You mean," said Tommy, "that you will sell your daughter to the man who will lend you enough money to increase your measly fish business. A fish peddler dishing out stuff about noble ancestors! Bah!"

"Get out of my house, you American adventurer! And if you come back once more, I will turn you over to the police!"

Back at his hotel Tommy's spirits sank to a low ebb. He had not the remotest idea how to persuade Senor Jacinto to consent to his marriage to Dolores.

Suddenly Tommy leaped to his feet. He could not provide funds to help Dolores' father expand, but on the other hand. . . .

Early the next morning the streets of Ortegna rang to the cry of "Fish! Fresh Fish!" delivered in a strange and foreign dialect. Housewives rushed to their doors and smiled over the odd sight of a blond-haired American youth pushing a cart in front of him on which reposed a canvas tarpaulin covering great quantities of fresh fish. Curious, they stopped and questioned him, were astonished to learn that his price was far below that of Senor Jacinto.

NEWS of the oddity spread rapidly and before noon Tommy had sold out his supply. On the next day it was the same, and again on the day following.

A week passed and Tommy had worked up a nice business. Occasionally he saw Senor Jacinto, but the old man passed him by with never a word, but glowering looks.

On the eighth day Senor Jacinto stopped him on a deserted street. "This is an outrage! Ortegna is not big enough for two fish dealers. One of us will have to go."

"What a pity you are planning to leave the land of your birth where you own a fine house and have many friends."

Senor Jacinto choked with rage. "It is you who will go. I was here first. I built up the fish business here. You will have to go!"

"Gladly," said Tommy. "The moment you consent to my marriage to Dolores. I am not a fish dealer by trade. I am a surveyor. I would like to continue to be a surveyor, but not alone."

"Never!" shouted the angry man. Tommy shrugged and shook his head sadly. "It is a pity, Fish!" he called at the top of his voice. "Fresh fish!"

Senor Jacinto nearly burst a blood vessel. "Stop!" he shrieked. "The very sound of your voice is like a knife in my side. Take my daughter and the devil with you both! Only leave me in peace!"

Dolores was waiting in the patio when Tommy came for her.

"You are a very good fish peddler," she said. "Will you always be a fish peddler?"

"Only," said Tommy, "if your father should change his mind about consenting to our marriage."

Soucook Massacre

By Richard H. Wilkinson

CHARLIE Poe lived by his wits. Not because he had to but because he liked to. I could name a half dozen jobs he had been offered, all legitimate, all of which he turned down. He couldn't bear the thought of routine and being tied down.

I met him unexpectedly one day last summer in Boston.

3-Minute Fiction

"Not doing anything," he said when I questioned him.

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"Looking for something," he confessed.

"If you've nothing lined up," I suggested, "how about taking a ride up country with me? I'm making a two-day trip to Burlington."

"Like to," he said.

We started the next morning. Charlie wasn't the cheerful companion I anticipated. Obviously there was something on his mind.

Halfway across New Hampshire we came to a place alongside the road where a dozen or more cars were parked. A sign proclaimed the reason. "Visit the site of the famous Soucook Indian massacre," the sign read. "Nothing like it anywhere. Free lecture. Offers much by way of historical value. A scene you won't forget. Admission 25 cents."

"Stop!" said Charlie. I stopped. We got out and walked over to a shelter beneath which a man was selling tickets.

The man with the tickets saw us and urged us to buy, eloquently elaborating on his printed sign. Charlie dug into his pocket and produced a half dollar. Presently about 20 people had purchased tickets and the man got down off his stool and led us through the gate.

We followed him along the path. He talked as we progressed. By the time we reached our objective we were all steamed up with apprehension.

We had entered a small clearing. Beyond it was a ledge, overhanging a shallow gorge through which a trickle of water flowed. We stood on the ledge while our guide told us how, 250 years ago, a detachment of militiamen had pursued a band of 20 Indians through the forest. Hard put, the Indians came to this ledge. Below them was the gorge, at that time a good many times deeper than now. Thus the redskins had their choice of dying into the gorge or being shot.

IT was a gruesome tale. We were all silent and impressed as we made our way back to the cars.

"That," said Charlie, "is the best gag I've ever seen."

"Maybe," I said, "but how can that guy prove any such thing happened there?"

"How can the tourists prove it didn't?" Charlie asked. "And what do they care. That chap knew what they wanted and he gave it to them. They were satisfied." He became thoughtful.

Charlie didn't mention the Soucook massacre again during our trip, but I suspected it was on his mind. When he left me in Boston two days later he shook hands warmly.

"Where are you off to now?" I asked him.

"Oh, the western plan of mine is still rankling." He grinned. "See you around."

Late in September I had occasion to go north again. Traveling the same route that Charlie and I had taken, I remembered the Soucook Massacre. The shelter was still there and there were cars parked outside. But a different man was selling tickets. The man was Charlie.

"How about this?" I asked.

He grinned. "You gave me the idea," he said. "Remember you wanted to know how the guy could prove the massacre happened here? Well, I asked him, at the same time flashing a tin badge I sometimes carry around. He decided to move on."

"Is that sort of thing ethical in your profession?" I asked.

"Sure. We're all suckers. Some of us are smarter. The guy was getting fed up anyhow. So am I. Some day somebody is going to ask me to prove that massacre story. If I'm smart enough I'll be gone before he gets here."
